Germany, both the financial and In Germany, both the financial and industrial situations are said to be improving. Bank deposits are increasing. Unemployment is decreasing. The government has an adequate stock of grain, but continues importing on long-time credits. A subsidy of 7,300,000,000 marks has been voted for importing grain and flour for the fiscal year.

A general feeling of optimism as regards the industrial situation is stated to prevail in Great Britain. The reducprevail in Great Britain. The reduc-on in the bank rate and the settlement of the coal strike have already had effect. As a corollary to the bright-ened aspect for future business it is anticipated that a gradual improvement in the rate of exchange will be experienced. At the beginning of July prices of cotton, silk, hides, foodstuffs and flour showed tendencies to strengthen, whereas the prices of wool, flax, jute, sugar, coffee, whent, oil, rubber, copper, tin and ire, weakened Cabling from Copenhagen, Commercial Attaché Norman L. Anderson states that the depression in trade, industry and finance in the Scandinavian countries shows no sign of improvement in the near future. Deflation is occurring and speculation is decreasing. The Swedish and Danish governments have refused to increase import duties, although this was progetty reduties, although this was urgently requested by the industries for the protection against German goods sold in Scandinavian market; at bottom prices. The reason is given that this would stop domestic fall in prices. Wholesale prices are declining to a great extent, but retail prices have not generally followed this decline.

It is evident that the Administration is backing up the chairman in his resolution for widespread publicity of all acts, whether good or bad.

Incidentally it is made plain that the new head of the board will refuse to inherit the involved shipping situation with its enormous waste of money without taking not alone Congress but the American people into his confidence and letting them know all the facts.

Elmer Schlesinger, general counsel of the board, who returned to Washington Wednesday after a brief visit here, will announce the new personnel of his department within a day or two, it was reported at headquarters in this city.

With the appointment of able lawyers to defend the millions of dollars in suits against the government an im-will usually mean a fight, with fatal results to the foreigner. In Japan it is, therefore, not legal to protect one's self with weapons, even against a burglar, as to shoot any one exposes one to a charge of murder. It is noticeable that when burglars who have committed murder are on trial their main defence is that they were attacked by their hosts and had to kill in self-defence. The remarkable thing is that they can always get lawyers to defend them and enter this plea before the court.

L'VIDENCE of the confidence of men the world over in this great achievement-the New Improved Gillette—is briefly this:—

Announced to the public on May 16th, 1921.

Demand unforeseen by many dealers. A week later "RUSH" orders from these same merchants.

At one time, it looked as if New Improved Gillettes were at a premium. Within a month, distribution showing signs of catching up with demand, in spite of unfilled orders. Today, the factory still making an effort to catch upwith 500,000 New Improved Gillettes already sold to the first 500,000 lucky enough to get them.

The most spontaneous response to any razor of any type since the world began making and using shaving implements.
